Modern technology – easy to use

And this is how it works!

The filter cartridge is installed directly under the sink unit and is connected to the water pipe and the tap. There are two levers on the 3-way tap from GROHE – one for filtered water and one for unfiltered mains water. A programmable meter unit monitors the filter capacity and gives a signal as soon as the filter has to be changed.

Professional technology at home

BWT magnesium technology

As all baristas know, the coffee can taste differently than expected, less aromatic, or even bitter. One cause that you might not think about straight away is the water. Because with a proportion of up to 98 % not only is water the carrier medium, but also the main ingredient in finished drinks. Its quality and mineral composition directly affect the extraction process and so also the development of coffee aromas. BWT Magnesium Technology makes it possible to make coffee with perfect water without any unwanted additives.

In BWT bestmax PREMIUM filter cartridges not only is the raw water descaled and all unwanted particles removed in a 5-stage process, it is also mineralized with magnesium. Magnesium is a valuable flavour carrier and ensures optimal extraction in coffee and coffee specialities – an important pre-condition for the best taste and sensory qualities of the end products coffee and tea in restaurants and vending.
